Pathways to an Empire State College Bachelor's Degree

About the Program

Through a special partnership with CUNY Kingsborough Community College (KCC), after you earn your associate degree, you have the opportunity to stay in the area and earn a bachelor's degree with Empire State College, SUNY. In the Pathways Program, you are an Empire State College student taking up to 16 credits at KCC and 48 credits at Empire State College.

At Empire State College, courses are offered through guided independent study, online and in small groups. All additional coursework taken at KCC is intended to support your bachelor's degree requirements. The Empire State College faculty will direct you to the appropriate courses to take. Students interested in programs related to business, telecommunications/media studies, liberal arts and community and human services are strongly encouraged to apply.

How the Program Works (You must complete the associate degree requirements for program eligibility)

- Apply to Empire State College, and if you meet admission requirements, you will be accepted with at least junior status, making you financial aid eligible.
- In your first term, you will enroll in Empire State College's Educational Planning course in which you'll design your own customized bachelor's degree program.
- With the guidance of the Empire State College faculty mentors, you'll enroll in Empire State College courses and cross register at KCC for the additional 16 credits of support courses. You may attend either full time or part time.
- You will take up to 80 lower-division credits at KCC, while the number of advanced-level credits taken at Empire State College will be at least 48.

* This degree program is a sample. Every matriculated Empire State College student works with an academic advisor (called a mentor) to self-design a degree program through a process called educational planning. Empire State College requires all matriculated students to complete a minimum of 4 credits in educational planning studies. Students should discuss their educational planning options with their mentor.
